Program of the RC30 for the XX ISA Congress in Melbourne

To compose this program from the proposals that were submitted, we have tried to find a balance between the traditional themes of the sociology of work and the emerging themes; between sessions with a theoretical dimension or aiming rather at exposing empirical studies; finally, between young researchers and colleagues "established" for a long time in our field. We have also taken care to give visibility to certain geographical areas that were less present in the previous conference, as well as to the work of colleagues who propose a more attentive look at the dynamics of the South.

It was not an easy task, but the program is now ready and includes the following sessions :

- RC30 Business Meeting
- Transformation of Industrial Relations and Emerging Organization: Digital, Rationalization and Storage Industry.
- The Frontiers of Work and in Work.
- International Migration and Economic Informalization : A Denationalized Perspective - Part I
- International Migration and Economic Informalization: A Denationalized Perspective - Part II
- Implications of Authoritarian Policies on Workers and Labor Precariousness
- Post-Pandemic Possibilities for Workplace Change
- Environment and Work: Links and Threats
- Conflicts and Normative Transactions in Multicultural Work Contexts
- Femmes Migrantes Sur Le Marché Du Travail Subalterne/Migrant Women in the Subaltern Labor Market
- Language and Work: The Post-Pandemic Evolutions of Categorizations Toward (Un)Employment and Working Conditions
- Understanding Care Work in a Context of Crisis: Health, Risks and Labour Conflicts
- Trade Unions Under Authoritarianism in the Global South
- Work Precarities in the Global South, Part I.
- Work Precarities in the Global South, Part II.
- Uncertainty and Inequality: The Long-Term Effects of the Pandemic on Workers Careers and Experiences
